DETAILED ACTION

Response to Amendment

Amendment to claims 1-10 is hereby acknowledged.

No claim has been canceled and no new claim has been added. Thus, claims 1-10 remain pending in this current application.

Claims 1 and 5 rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, are withdrawn in response to the amendment.

Maintained Rejection

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

Claims 1-10 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over US Patent Application 2002/0098136 to Vanderborgh (hereinafter "Vanderborgh").

Vanderborgh discloses a process for injecting oxygen into a reactor having essentially axial flow of the gas mixture through a catalyst bed (Figure 1, reference 4), with the oxygen being fed to a ring distributor system located above the catalyst bed and being ejected from a plurality of outlet openings in the ring distributor onto the catalyst surface at an oblique angle deviating from the vertical, namely in the direction of the center of the reactor or in a tangential direction (Figures 2 and 3).

Vanderborgh does not disclose an oxy-dehydration process. However, the teaching of injecting oxygen on a catalyst bed in a reactor can be used in any process requiring oxygen including an oxy-dehydration process.

Response to Arguments

Applicants' arguments filed 2/12/10 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicants argue, "Vanderborgh fails to disclose or suggest a method and a device wherein oxygen is jetted onto the catalyst surface. Vanderborgh shows in Fig. 2, for example, that a tangential inflow is not excluded, which means that even the walls of Vanderborgh are used for flow guidance.” It appears that Applicants are arguing that a tangential inflow should be excluded in which case the argument goes against the claimed invention (see instant claim 2 which recites “oxygen is taken up in a direction on to the reactor center and/or in direction on to the reactor wall and/or in a tangential alignment”). Emphasis added by Examiner. Looking at the figures in Vanderborgh, the reference discloses jetting oxygen in the direction of the center of the reactor or in a tangential direction as claimed.

In view of the foregoing, the claimed invention is not patentably distinct over Vanderborgh.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
